LEADERSHIP REPORT READING IMPROVEMENT

At TBAS our improvement cycle has been and currently is focussed on reading comprehension and as you are aware, we have been heavily invested in meeting our targets and whole site improvement towards these. We were thrilled to have our 2019 results finally acknowledged and celebrated in The Advertiser as our Year 3 results were recognised as one of the top results in the state! Other year cohorts also demonstrated growth and pleasing results when compared to other 'like' schools in our area. The hard work we have all been doing is having measurable and high level impact!

Last week students in years 3,5,7 and 9 participated in a reading assessment to help us gain valuable data on each child's reading journey. The purpose of conducting this assessment was to provide teachers with specific evidence on where each child is at with their reading progression and where to next for growth. Staff are currently analysing the data to implement targeted teaching strategies for highest impact for individuals.

This data supports our Site Improvement focus on Reading Improvement and will assist us in determining where to next for your child. Parent/Teacher interviews later this term will give us the opportunity to share and discuss these outcomes with parents.

This week we have been working with several 'experts' to improve our capacity to deliver high quality reading strategies to our students. We have been cited as a school who are looking to accelerate the targeted work we have already achieved and have been appointed a Literacy Coach. Jessica Colleu Terradas visited yesterday to engage with our Leadership team and look at strategies to improve the impact we are currently having, Kristy Newton also added her knowledge and expertise to the strategies we are working on and met with individual teachers on their current focus work.

SENIOR SECONDARY

Come & Try VET Day in Pt Lincoln

On Wednesday 5th August the year 10 students joined me on a trip to Lincoln to gain an insight into a range of Vocational Education & Training (VET) courses available for them next year. This special day was also attended by year 10s from Cleve, Cowell, Cummins, Port Lincoln and Streaky Bay DfE schools.

By pursuing VET qualifications while still at school, students can equip themselves with specific industry skills while also gaining credit towards their SA Certificate of Education (SACE). Our year 10s were able to choose 3 out of 12 taster sessions on offer. Courses such as Aquaculture, Automotive, Health Services and Kitchen Operations, just to name a few, were popular amongst Tumbly students. By visiting the actual learning environments, meeting the lecturers and doing some of the learning that the courses offer, our students are now more aware of how VET looks and feels. This puts them in good stead to make an informed decision about pursuing a VET pathway in their Senior Secondary years.

I was lucky enough to be with the majority of our students in a Hospitality session, where they learnt to make espresso coffees and colourfully mixed soft drinks. Janene Piip, EP Regional Manager TAFE SA, explained to our group how qualifications in these fields can be very helpful in creating opportunities for starting a career or gaining part-time work for tertiary students.

Whatever their plans for the future, the day provided some worthwhile experiences for all of our attending students. A public vote of thanks is well deserved by Dianne Fitzgerald (Vocational Pathways Consultant), and the VET providers involved. Thanks also to our volunteer bus driver Robert Moyle who devoted his day to us. For me, it was a pleasure to spend the day with our year 10 students, who conducted themselves admirably throughout the event.

University Applications Now Open

SATAC (SA Tertiary Admissions Centre) applications are open for university courses now. Our Year 12s have a heap of course guides and brochures to peruse if they're interested. There are also campus tours happening at this time. Most of them are "virtual tours" (due to Covid19) and there are webinars which students can join from home. Details of these are available in the year 12 home room.

Flinders Uni. Info Session

On Wednesday afternoon last week, the Year 11 and 12 students were given the opportunity to meet with Rebecca Mason, Education Pathways & Student Recruitment Project Officer from Flinders University. She was able to give them a sense of what uni. life is like while also providing information on applying for courses and support grants. There are many grants which can be applied for to help offset the costs of regional students living away from home to attend university courses. For further information on any of the details above, please feel free to contact me at the school or via a Seesaw message.

Wellbeing R-12

TBAS Kindness Committee

The Kindness Committee have made a change for this semester. The new students on this committee are:

- ◆ Reception- Fletcher Barnett, Chloe Treasure, Alec Moss
- ◆ Year 1 Ayla Seaman, Ethan Lawrie, Max Howard and Benny Barney.
- ◆ Year 2/3 Koa Barnett, Maxtin Richardson, Jaxon Dillon, Annabel Modra, Rahni Smith, Harper Franks
- ◆ Year 3/4 Eva Dempsey, Narrah Tierney, Zara Seaman, Amali Barnett, Lily Cave, Rebecca Sharman
- ◆ Year 5/6 Marni Carpenter, Krystal Thompson
- ◆ Year 7 Baden Simpson, Charli Solly
- ◆ Year 12 Desi Franks, Alex Stratford, Kirra Lawrie, Shannen Webb

I look forward to working with this group of wonderful students to promote kindness around our schools. These students are a part of a roster where they spend lunch times with other students ensuring everyone feels valued and happy. It is lovely to see students communicating and engaging with each other with a focus on kindness, communication and participation. Pictured are the Kindness Committee getting students involved in a parachute activity and writing positive quotes and pictures during a lunch time last week. The beautiful warm sun and the happy chatter made for a wonderful lunch break for many students.

Aboriginal Cultural group

Our Indigenous students are continuing to meet with Jason Warren and Jade Kemp from WCYCS to engage in an Aboriginal cultural program. They meet each fortnight to explore cultural identity and increase understanding about the role of country, kin and language to their cultural identity. Late last term there was a focus on MABO and the students had the opportunity to take a buddy with them to learn about this important topic. Recently art works have been created where cultural symbols were used to show an understanding of their meanings. The students have located where their families originate from by using the AIATSIS map of Indigenous Australia.

Hello everyone, I can't believe we're already well into term 3. I've enjoyed getting involved in different classes around the school, with Music and PE remaining favourites of mine!

Just a little reminder that I'm in the school to provide extra support to students, staff and parents. This might be through classroom support, working with small groups on particular issues, going on excursions, or just being around in the yard for a chat.

I'm here on Tuesdays and Fridays and if any students, staff or parents need to contact me, they can call me at the school on 8688 2003 or email me on miriam.telfer236@schools.sa.edu.au.

A LITTLE BIT OF FRANCE IN TUMBY BAY

In 2018, Tumbay Bay residents hit the jackpot when French patisserie chef Marvin Lattre, alongside wife Grace, arrived in town from Limoges, France. L'Anse, the biggest gem Tumbay has seen, serves delicious coffee, desserts, pastries, and brunch meals. Marvin has 10 years of experience in the hospitality industry and has worked in a range of kitchens including the restaurant who served Monsieur and Madame Jacques Chirac the ex-President of France.

Tumbay Bay is a beautiful coastal town situated 50 kilometers north of Port Lincoln. It is a popular destination for fishermen, holiday makers and beach goers. This town is also popular because of the 2200 square foot mural which can't be missed, driving in or out of Tumbay Bay you will spot the silo painted by Argentinian muralist Martin Ron. The eleven street art paintings have also put Tumbay Bay on the map, attracting tourists in from far and wide. Although tourists wish to spend their day discovering these spectacular murals the real attraction is the L'Anse Café.

L'Anse's social media includes photos and videos of scrumptious looking food that will have your stomach rumbling at the sight. The vibrant bright colours of the dishes and immaculate presentation will have your mouth watering. L'Anse Café does a fabulous job at drawing in their clientele through their social media accounts. Posts on the café's social media tempt the customers in as they want their own taste of the indescribable experience.

My coffee arrives and I am torn. I can't ruin the classy latte art that sits on top of the smooth foam without capturing a photo first. I take my first sip tasting the smooth and rich crema, with subtle hints of rich chocolate. The decadent rich coffee leaves a pleasant aftertaste of roasted flavors in my mouth. My taste buds tingle as I crave more of this warm, flavorsome masterpiece.

The pancakes are a unique dish to L'Anse Café and are Marvin's specialty. As they arrive I am speechless. The most spectacular array of buttermilk pancakes are placed in front of me and I am in awe. My jaw drops and tummy rumbles, almost drawing over this delightful breakfast that is just too gorgeous to deconstruct. I don't blame customers who are eager to follow the trend of posting these sensational pancakes online. The colorful and exquisitely sliced fruit balances the sweetness of the chocolate sauce and vibrant colors on the plate. The placement of this dish is just divine. My knife cuts through the thick, fluffy pancake while the chocolate sauce and vanilla ice cream ooze onto my cutlery. I scrape up the crushed peanuts for an extra texture of crunch before raising my fork to my mouth. My palate is delighted as I experience this dish fit for a king queen. It's at this moment I am truly grateful for getting the Saturday special pancakes

After finishing my meal, I remember the display cabinet of patisserie items which appear to have walked out the door. With the cabinet left almost bare I couldn't resist but buy a few of the last chocolate croissants to take home and share with my family. The curvaceous chocolate croissant has a vibrant golden brown colour. As I pull this French delicacy apart, the caramelised rich butter aroma makes my mouth water as it awaits the sensational taste. The buttery pastry hits my tongue and creates an indescribable sensation, my mouth tastes a hint of chocolate and I couldn't help but devour the whole thing.

If you ever find yourself on the Eyre Peninsula it is highly recommended that you pay a visit to the L'Anse Café. The magnificent experience will have you drawing on arrival and your stomach full as you leave.

L'ANSE CAFE

EVER IMAGINED FROLICKING THE STREETS OF FRANCE? LIKEWISE. WELL, AS I STEP FOOT INTO L'ANSE CAFE, I AM IMMEDIATELY TRANSPORTED HALFWAY ACROSS THE WORLD. WHO WOULD BELIEVE I AM ACTUALLY SITUATED IN THE PICTURESQUE SEASIDE DESTINATION OF TUMBV BAY? THERE IS NO DENYING IT. THIS CAFE IS JUST ANOTHER JEWEL IN THE CROWN FOR THIS CHARMING EYRE PENINSULA VILLAGE.

The café's stunning portrayal of gourmet morsels via their social media pages is one of the biggest lures for hungry customers. A quick scroll of L'Anse's Instagram feed sets excited tongues wagging, and patrons travel from far and wide to receive a portion of France on their plates. It is obvious before you even walk in the door that this place oozes vibrance.

The chill of the cold winters' morning is forgotten as the sweet, intoxicating aromas of the hand-crafted pastries, envelop me like a blanket as I open the front door. One of the first people I see upon arrival is pâtisserie chef, Marvin Lattrez, who greets us as if we are close friends. His bold beaming smile, along with the dense French accent makes it impossible for you to feel anything less than jovial. Although he may stand inside a conventional open kitchen, he is far from a regular chef. No stranger to royalty, Lattrez has prepared dishes for the upper class, including Jacques Chirac, the previous president of France. Not the typical experience of a chef in a rural coastal town. That's what reigns supreme here.

We settle on a long communal table, overlooking a bronzed feature wall, displaying a range of French portraits. My senses are stimulated as the traditional music filters into the room and I naturally question my surroundings. Could I be in Café de la Paix in Paris? Maybe not, but this is the next best thing. After all, who wouldn't want to be sitting abroad in this beloved destination?

As I approach the front counter to place my order, I witness one of L'Anse's renowned dishes, eggs benedict with a side of bacon, being prepared; enough to make my stomach rumble. Whilst waiting in line, I eye off the brief but appetising menu. While only a few options, it's anything but dreary. It caters for all, ranging from French baguettes am not willing to take. These babies sell like hotcakes. Lattrez can hardly keep up with their demand, dedicating his work into the early hours of the morning to ensure they reach those customers desperate of experiencing a French delicacy. A pure creation of texture comes with each bite. The thin, flaky sheets of pastry add a crunch, flawlessly combined with the creaminess of the custard. The multitude of layers finished with swirls of chocolate ganache, sends me into a daze. I always thought the phrase 'melt in your mouth' was a myth. But not today.

If savoury is more your flavour, then the Croque madam is an absolute must. I neglect the steam that arises from the dish as the anticipation of exploring this creation fills me with excitement. I unearth a gold mine of thinly sliced smoked ham and oozing béchamel sauce, placed between thick crunchy broche bread. The balance of the saltiness from the ham, paired with the tanginess of the sauce keeps the taste buds enthralled and wanting more. It's richly flavoured, and the hero of the dish is a perfectly cooked egg resting on top. So, do yourself a favour: if you're off carbs, you may need to rethink this decision. After eyeing off this French masterpiece, it will be well worth risking the calories.

Having to leave the lively ambience of this dining experience has me already planning my next visit. Upon eavesdropping, I hear a couple describe their dish to Marvin, who collects their empty plates, as 'extremely impressive'. I couldn't have said it better myself. A fitting way to describe L'Anse Café.

clear: Lattrez has trained his staff well, and no plate leaves the kitchen without impeccable presentation. Without realising, my jaw falls into my lap as I congratulate my choice of dish. The pupils of my eyeballs enlarge just looking at the array of distinctive colours before me. The pancakes, drizzled in chocolate syrup and topped with vanilla ice cream and peanuts, create a textbook mix of contrasting textures; smooth and crunchy. A party in my mouth, perfect for my palate. As I delve in deeper; the creation is just like a traditional sponge that lovingly soaks up the syrup and allows the ice cream to slowly seep into the dish. No offence Mum, but these topple your recipe any day of the week. Cooked with absolute precision, the imported French butter creates the smooth, golden colouring on the outside. The addition of the vibrant citrus fruits brings the dish to life and delivers just the right amount of acidity to harmonise the sweet tones. These flavours are impressive, and the balance is bang-on.

My sweet tooth is in its element today. The crème napoleons that sit on the counter's edge are screaming my name. My stomach is full, although I know if I don't choose to include now, I never will. And that's a risk I to smoked salmon benedict, you're sure to find something that tickles your fancy. Tempted by yesterday's Instagram post, I favourably settle on the weekly pancake special. Far from any other dish you've ever had before, this colourful creation is one to die for. My taste buds are teased at the sight of the crème napoleons, macarons and chocolate-filled croissants that sit beside me, as the ultimate lure. My mouth waters at the thought of digging into one of these phenomenal desserts. I know for sure I can't leave here today without one. Because why not, it's not every day you visit France.

In this place, there are no moments wasted. As soon as the drinks are ordered, the crew return with them pronto. Upon entering the room, the aromas of the freshly brewed coffee are inebriating. My favourite smell in the world. As I lift the mug to my lips, a wry smile appears across my face. The first sip is perfection. This is just how I would expect heaven to be. The smooth and silky froth coats my cupid's bow as the roasted crema trickles down my throat. I let out a small sigh as the full-body taste lingers on my palate.

Coffee aside, it's mealttime. When the meals are delivered to our table, two things are

Year 12 English

Year 12 Cert 3 Fitness

Students will receive a nationally accredited certification when they complete the course. Students can acquire 85 SACE credits by completing the course.

There are 8 key units that the students will study where they need to demonstrate their competency in both practical and theory assessments.

- ⇒ Programming, Anatomy and Physiology
- ⇒ Client Screening
- ⇒ Specific Populations
- ⇒ Workplace Demonstrations
- ⇒ Equipment and Environments
- ⇒ Group Exercise
- ⇒ Instruct Movement Programs to Children
- ⇒ First Aid

Students can access these assessments via their online portal. Rather than complete weekly block training like other VET courses, the students have the benefit of access to 6 lessons/week face to face with a qualified teacher and assessor.

Students are given many opportunities to apply their skills using a variety of training methods to clients with different needs which is assessed via the Workplace Demonstration Practicals. This was recently applied to the year 3/4 and 5/6 classes, as part of the practical assessment for the Instruct Movement Programs to Children.

Year 10-12 Intraschool Netball Carnival

Interschool sport was cancelled for the entire term 2 due to the restrictions of COVID-19. Late last term an intraschool netball carnival was held for the year 10-12 students over a double lesson in the Rec Centre, with 4 teams were selected from the senior secondary students.

Every team played 3 quarters against each other with players playing every position throughout the carnival. The students enjoyed being active in a team environment again and did a great job assisting with umpiring and scoring.

Year 10-12 PE Teacher/Sports Coordinator

Year 12 PE

This is the first year of the new year 12 PE Course. The focus with assessment is In, Through and About Movement.

70% of the assessment is about how the student reflects on their participation in various sports and how they can improve their performance, 30% consisted of 3 Diagnostic Tasks

- * Analysis of Biomechanics in Athletics
- * The Role of Feedback and its Effect on Performance in Badminton
- * Interplay of Energy Systems in Badminton

40% consisted of the Improvement Analysis in Badminton where students selected a shot used in the game which included the Overhead Clear, Smash and Overhead Dropshot and evaluated and reflected on their journey of skill development over 7 weeks.

They utilised a range of data to provide evidence of their learning including footage, fitness tracking, heart rates, heat maps, data collection surveys and skill analysis.

The External Assessment which makes up 30% of the final grade has seen the exam replaced with a Group Dynamics Task. Students will participate in Netball and select 2 roles either as a Player, Motivational Coach, Tactical Coach, Technical Coach or Fitness Coach, with the emphasis on how they can improve other players performances in their team, when performing their coaching roles. The class has just commenced this final task using their classmates and the year 11 PE students to form 3 teams to play Netball.

TERM 3 Week 4 Monday 10.8.2020

Physically literate kids love to be active. So when Harper suggested the following week to have an Mini-Obstacle Course we ensured a healthy variety of veggie snacks celery, capsicum, cucumber & parsley to support her suggestions. Raya, Harper and Carmen carried out all the items for the course as Thea recorded who wanted to take part, all was ready and off they went.

Raya takes off running then over the bridges, stepping hoops, star jumps, under the tables' or over the tables. We could see excitement on Rivers face as she passes only to later see her collapse on a mat, telling me it was tiring, me too-Nala adds.
